

NYC Nightlife

Straight Up

Jamais Vu

Posted Thursday, January 04, 2007 2:12:41 PM by Adam Sherrett

The headaches that plague a New Yorker when planning more than a day ahead is almost that of a New Yorker at a Saturday brunch. In fact, we're almost willing to guess that as of right now you either A) can't find the "Sunday" button on your Blackberry or B) don't speak of such blasphemy. Well, all we have to say is that you need to bite the I'm-really-quite-cool-because-I-fly-by-the-seat-of-my-pants bullet and plan on visiting Bruno Jamais. For the first time in its four year history, Bruno will be open (6pm-2am) for all you money mongrels who have no concept of how comforting a five-spot can be. I know what you're saying: "Who honestly visits the Upper East Side for a night out?" Try the likes of Chazz Palminteri, Peter Cook, Billy Baldwin, and Chris Noth. Even Sarah Ferguson has been spotted here in the last month. Instead of sipping cheap wine and watching The Notebook for the 35th time alone, try hitting up one of New York's classiest hotspots for nibbling day-of-rest Foie Gras while sipping a Forbes-friendly $38 Platinum Martini. Best of all is the fact that a Sunday night visit allows you to sip martinis and figure out how you'll word your "so how did you blow your entire fortune" question for The Duchess of York. For reservations please call 212.396.3444.

Forward to Friends